Brenntag acquires US distributor of water treatment chemicals

Brenntag, the global market leader in chemical distribution, has acquired ALTIVIA Corporation ("Altivia"), a water treatment chemical distributor headquartered in Houston, Texas. Altivia has facilities in Houston, Texas, St. Gabriel, Louisiana and Marlow, Oklahoma. ALTIVIA Chemicals LLC’s aluminum polymers manufacturing business and the ferric and ferrous sulfate production facilities in Pasadena, Texas are not part of this transaction which was closed on December 31, 2012.

William Fidler, Member of the Management Board of Brenntag AG: “Altivia has a leading market position in one of the largest industrial distribution markets in the United States. The acquisition will considerably strengthen our regional organization in the Southwest as well as our water additives business, which is one of our focus industries globally. Its strategically located facility in Houston with river barge and rail capabilities will allow for efficiency gains and further expansion of our business. In addition, with the acquired infrastructure we expect a reduction of USD 10 million in our future capital expenditures as a result of facility consolidation.”

J. Michael Jusbasche, Chief Executive Officer and founder of Altivia: “This transaction allows ALTIVIA Corporation’s employees and core businesses the opportunity to join with a global leader and significantly expand their market reach. Our chemical manufacturing company ALTIVIA Chemicals, LLC will seek new chemical manufacturing investments and operate the iron and aluminum polymer coagulants business.”

Altivia formulates, blends, repackages and distributes water treatment chemicals. In addition, Altivia serves a wide variety of customer industries with products such as bleach, aluminum sulfate, specialty polymers, caustic soda, chlorine and sulfuric acid.

For the financial year 2012 the company is expected to generate sales of USD 83 million, a gross profit of USD 36 million and a normalised EBITDA of USD
13.5 million. The investment amount will be USD 125 million. A highly desirable and valuable 40 acre parcel of land with access to the Houston ship channel is included in the transaction.
