Food Application & Development Centers – Brenntag in Vietnam

When was Brenntag Vietnam established?

Brenntag entered the Asia Pacific region in 2007 with the acquisition of Rhodia’s chemical distribution operations in the area – and further expanded its interests with the acquisition of EAC Industrial Ingredients Ltd in 2010. Since then, Brenntag has continuously invested in its Asia Pacific business, and in 2014 installed an ultra-high temperature (UHT) processing pilot plant – the country’s first – in Ho Chi Minh City.

2014

The year that a state-of-the-art UHT pilot plant was installed at Brenntag Vietnam’s FA&D Center in Ho Chi Minh City.

Where is Brenntag Vietnam’s Food Application & Development (FA&D) Center?

The FA&D Center is located in the heart of Ho Chi Minh City, the country’s second largest city. The Center’s proximity to major transport networks, as well as its position in the heart of the Asia Pacific region, provides the perfect platform to partner with customers and suppliers, both locally and on a global scale. Brenntag Vietnam also has offices in the capital, Hanoi. Around 200 people are employed across the two locations.
What services are provided by the Brenntag Vietnam team?

As the largest chemical distributor in Vietnam, Brenntag is leading the way in terms of innovative food, beverage and personal care-based applications, commercial know-how, and expert consultancy to customers across the region. The installment of its UHT pilot plant in 2014 added yet another capability to its skillset. Due to the warm climate in the country, dairy and other liquid food products can deteriorate quickly. However, by exposing them to intense heat (up to around 135-140°C), harmful micro-organisms are killed off, prolonging the products’ shelf life by up to eight months. As well as benefiting consumers, installing the plant enables Brenntag Vietnam to conduct pilot trials prior to full production, reducing the research and development time for customers.

“Our investment in the UHT equipment in Vietnam underlines Brenntag’s commitment as a solution provider in the country, and wider Asia Pacific region, for the food and beverage industry. It also supports our strategic intent to add value and sustain excellence, so as to be the preferred distributor for customers and suppliers in Asia Pacific.”
